

More Bang For Your Buck...

Why you don't need a massive budget to have amazing
guest speakers

Who am I?

A brief overview:

- Over a decade of large-scale events experience
- Event marketer by trade but dabble in onsite customer journey and content
- Passionate about attendee experience

TL:DR

What we'll cover:

- Reverse engineer your strategy
- Debunk common guest speaker myths
- Pro tips to build your own strategy – even on a budget

The background is a solid purple color with a dark purple grid pattern. There are several decorative elements: large, colorful, wavy lines in yellow, pink, and blue on the left and right sides, and small, colorful, wavy lines (confetti) in the top right and bottom left corners.

One Size Doesn't Fit All

A Brief History...

Pre-pandemic: big budgets, "hype" and
"vibes" were high

>2020

Post-pandemic: new constraints, new mindset

2022<

MYTHS

Let's bust some myths about guest speakers...

01

Attendance

Having a guest speaker will drive event registrations

02

Lots of $$

Guest speakers will cost too much money

03

"Celebrities"

Attendees want to hear from "famous people"

The background is black with purple borders on the left and right sides. There are colorful streamers (yellow, pink, blue) and confetti (yellow, pink, blue) scattered around the edges.

01

Attendance

Having a guest speaker will drive event registrations

Do guest speakers drive registrations?

Announcements ≠ spike in registrations

Registration patterns consistent regardless of speaker name

02

Lots of $$$

Guest speakers will cost too
much money

*I just don't have the budget

03

"Celebrities"

Attendees want to hear from
"famous people"

The data to back it up!

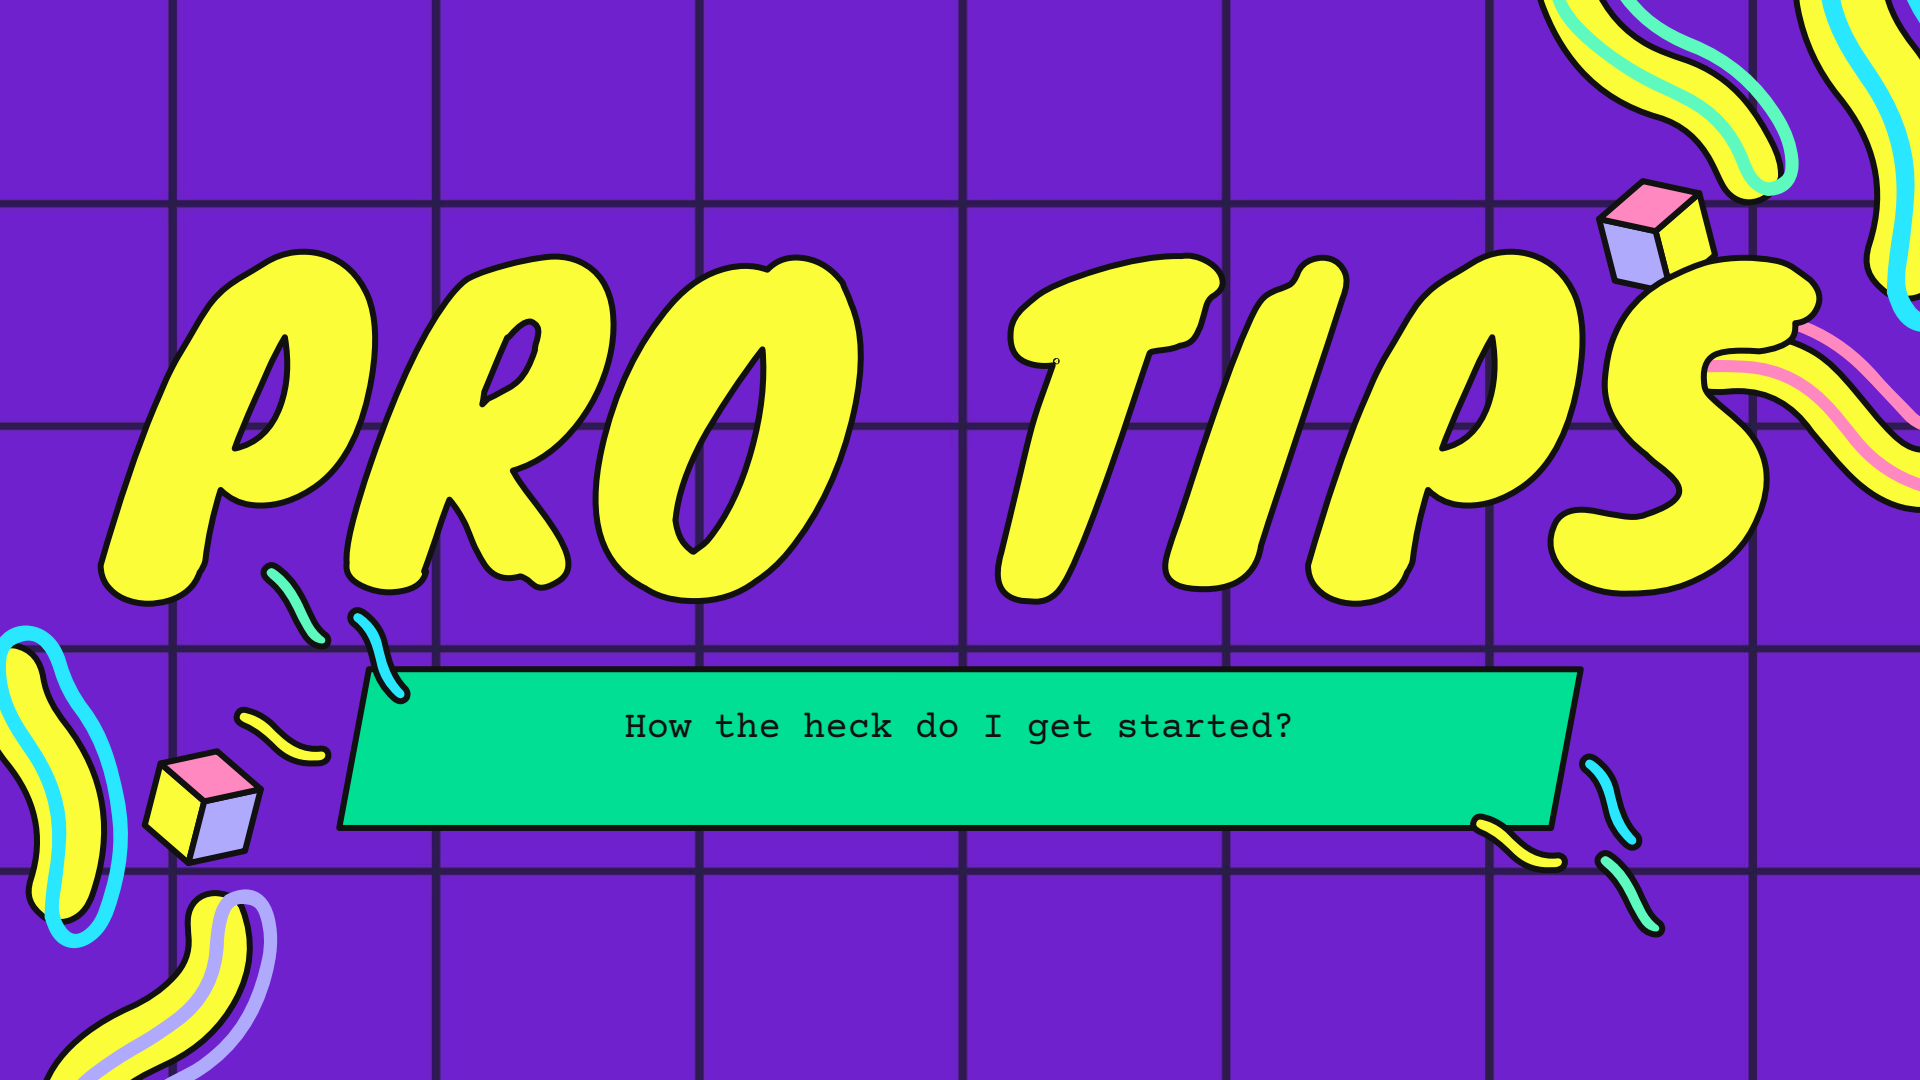

"We repeat: celebrity speakers will not boost registrations. Unless they're experts in a relevant vertical, celebrities don't drive behavior or outweigh what really matters."

Preferred keynote topics and speaker types

Source: Winter 2024 Freeman Syndicated Survey of Event Attendees. Copyright Freeman 2024.

PRO TIPS

How the heck do I get started?

Attendee-first approach

Dig into your audience

Demographics, needs, preferences, patterns

Marketing-led thinking

Align with overall attendee value

Redefine KPIs

What does success look like?

With an attendee-first approach, you need attendee-first feedback to drive your success metrics.

THINK. FEEL. DO.

Think

Provoke new ideas,
find relevance

Think

"this feels like it was developed purely for me."

Feel

Emotional response
and connection

Feel

Inspired, energized
and motivated

Do

Actions to take

Do

Approach their week
with a willingness to learn and connect.

Storytelling
WINS

Storytelling always wins

Astronaut

Wow! What cool and interesting stories!

AI Expert

Deep Sea Explorer

It's my job to create the narrative to weave the stories together

*So...How did it perform?

Attendance Rate

Overall average attendance
rate for all session at 70%

Session Score

Overall average session
score at 4.16

"This was the very best session I attended through the entire Explore, I was feeling overwhelmed and anxious about the place I fit in the ecosystem of VMware, until I had my perspectives re-adjusted by the extremely engaging and just awe-inspiring presentations. I worry that because of its divergence from the typical software development mindset it will not get a good review, but I cannot stress enough how meaningful this experience was to me. thank you."

-Session Attendee

Keep on exploring...

Let's connect!

Nikki Sherin

Head of Event Marketing
Broadcom

Thanks!

CREDITS: This presentation template was created by Slidesgo, including icons by Flaticon, and infographics & images by Freepik